What's New in the Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.2)?

By now the news is commonplace: Polar Vortex 2.0 has struck the United States. Weather forecasters who foresaw it had no special powers, nor did the president. The national effort, named for its ability to chill temperature readings, to preserve life and the country, has, after 30 years of repeated forecast failures, succeeded in making its way down here from the Arctic region, the worst part of a rapidly rising Global Warming Polar Vortex. The news media are at the door, ready to play their roles in the drama of survival. Will the bottom fall out? Will the temperature plunge? Will the country sink into an icy depression? These are all good questions, but the real question is: Will any one really care, for weather is so familiar to them that it can be mere entertainment rather than a matter of life and death? The National Weather Service and the media have no authority to predict the future, nor have they any special knowledge of how to do so. They are in fact predicting the future not as to cause and effect, but as to the effect that is already here and will continue in the future. By failing to predict "what is" the weather service can only hope to predict what is to come. This is not a scientific experiment, but an attempt to predict the future by looking back at the past. And so it has come to pass, that the NWS is in a state of polarization. What has been predicted is meaningless and the theory may be proven or it may not. What will they predict? The fear-mongers are calling for increased governmental control of the weather, in the name of Global Warming. They are loudly proclaiming that major, economically destructive, climactic changes are to take place and so the NWS should be obliged by law to teach society to better prepare. The National Weather Service anticipates a future of increasing precipitation, hurricanes, earthquakes, tornadoes, sea-level rise, and for the first time in the agency's history, flooding in the lower 48 states. The ultimate rise in temperature is predicted to take place over the next few years, but most of this is already complete. The cold that will engulf the country for a time in the near future is already here and it is intensifying now. So the NWS is predicting a future of increasing precipitation and floods along with increasing temperatures. This is obvious nonsense to anyone who has lived through a
